Software engineer

+55 (61) 9 8250 0139 / adam@brandizzi.com.br

EXPERIENCE

Liferay Latin America

Senior software engineer

March 2012 – present

I evolve Liferay by turning customers' requests into technical solutions. Large experience, among other topics, on times and time zones, workflow, textual search and product management.

954 Business Consulting

Senior architect

April 2012 – December 2012

I set up the communication between our customer's sales representatives and our support team by building a call center with Asterisk and Elastix.

DevMedia

Author

May 2012 – November 2017

I wrote articles for Brazilian Java Magazine (not to be confused with the one published by Oracle).

Assistant editor

May 2012 – October 2012

I ensured Java Magazine's articles did not contain factual errors or less than optimal prose.

SEA Tecnologia

Consultant

May 2012

I helped my previous employer in a especially demanding project.

Software engineer

May 2008 – April 2012

Many different projects, ranging from web development to hardware management.

Instructor

September 2011 – May 2012

As a certified Liferay instructor, I provided training to customers and other Liferay partners.

Politec

Software developer

July 2005 – June 2008

Here I helped Banco do Brasil expand its social programs.

LANGUAGES

English

Full professional proficiency. I use English on a daily basis on my current position.

Spanish

Full professional proficiency. I had opportunity to apply my Spanish skills in professional trips and it was quite adequate. Less practiced than my English, though.

EDUCATION

Universidade de Brasília

Licentiate on Computing

2007 – 2009

Certified for developing and instructing.

Computer Science

2002 – 2007

This is a throughout, academy-focused course that gave me solid basis for my education and career. Sadly, I did not graduate on it, though.

Escola Técnica de Brasília

Industrial Informatics

2000 – 2002

I learned about using information systems to control production lines and power networks.
